How Do I Run My Building with All These Changes Coming from Washington?

Dr. Gifford AHCA-NCAL | Washington, D.C.

New payment models - PDPM, changes to Five Star, workforce shortages, new regulations, new staffing measures, new emergency preparedness regs, and the list goes on. How can I keep abreast of all these changes and simultaneously figure out how to staff my Center and address the latest crises? Lurching crises to crises is unhealthy. This session will cover common cross cutting themes to these changes to help members adapt and focus on only a handful of changes they need to make. In addition, the major change in SNF part A payment from RUGs to PDPM starting in October of 2019 will be reviewed.

Don't Take Away My Lab Service

Mr. Michael P. Ryan | Wadsworth Center | NYS Department of Health & Panel

What would happen if you no longer had a commercial lab or hospital able to provide phlebotomy services to your facility? Are you prepared to respond if this happens? There is new technology available for point of care lab services that you might want to discover. Mr. Ryan will lead a panel of experts who will explore current and future potentials related to waived lab services; technology that can get you results in minutes; and how some providers are leading the way into the future.

Target Audience

Owners, Administrators, Executive Directors, Directors of Nursing, Therapists, Department Heads and other Interdisciplinary Team members

Senior Living's Critical Dining Challenges and Implications for the Future

Ms. Ellen Lowre, Mr. Vic Kingsley & Mr. Adam Grafton | Unidine | Boston, MA

Today, senior living communities face a variety of challenges meeting their residents' needs while preparing for the larger, more diverse senior population of the future. This presentation will outline major dining challenges and their implications that senior living residences need to address right now to stay competitive and attract the next generation of senior residents. We will review the following trends: Demographic changes sweeping the nation; Population trends; Socio-economic shifts in silent and baby boomer generations; Health and wellness trends, including the rise of chronic diseases; We will zoom into one area of the utmost importance: memory care/Alzheimer's disease. Finally, we will outline areas where dining can offer much needed relief and supplement important elements of care in communities.

Primary Caregiving in the Residential Care Setting: A Model for Ensuring Optimal Quality Care and Promoting Resident Health and Happiness

Ms. Kathy Sindoni | Substantial Compliance Consulting Group | Ithaca, NY

This session will explore a model of care delivery that will assist facilities in ensuring optimal quality care for their residents. Based on the Primary Nursing Model, this concept empowers direct caregivers to play a greater role in the overarching attendance to each resident's needs. As the most frequent and direct connection to our residents, direct caregivers hold the keys to identifying resident's needs, changes, and preferences. Direct caregivers develop deep, genuine connections with the residents they care for. As such, they are a vital conduit for Administrators, Case Managers, Activity Directors, and other key players in the residential setting. This model embraces the natural tendency for such relationship development and facilitates optimization of these managerial roles. At the same time, it empowers the direct caregivers who, due to the nature of their role, will continue to have the most frequent contact with both the residents and their loved ones. This model has proven effective in ensuring the accuracy of service plans and other functional documents, keeping caregivers engaged in the "bigger picture" and embracing a greater responsibility, providing the resident's loved ones with greater trust and confidence, enhancing the knowledge and performance of facility managers, fostering a marketing advantage and reducing surveillance citations. Communication truly is everything when it comes to coordinating care for our residents. Employing this model of caregiving in your facility will assist you in ensuring that your residents remain healthy, happy, and safe!
